

Truth Project Social Media Toolkit

The Inquiry is keen to ensure that victims and survivors of child sexual abuse across England and Wales are aware that they have the opportunity to share their experiences with the Truth Project and put forward recommendations for change. As social media is one of the most effective tools for the Inquiry to reach victims and survivors, we would value your support in sharing these messages.

To make it easy for you to signpost the Truth Project, we have provided our key messages, social media channels, suggested social media posts and website details below. We would appreciate your support in ensuring your stakeholders have access to information about the Truth Project, either by resharing the Inquiry's social media content or by posting the suggested content below.

Key messages

- The Truth Project has been set up to hear and learn from experiences of victims and survivors of child sexual abuse. It is part of the Independent Inquiry of Child Sexual Abuse.
- By sharing an experience with the Truth Project, victims and survivors can choose to put forward recommendations for change and make an important contribution to the work of the Inquiry.
- Victims and survivors can share their experience in writing, over the phone, or by attending a private and confidential face to face session.
- We understand everyone is different and therefore provide victims and survivors with the option to receive emotional support prior to and during the Truth Project process, should they wish to receive it.
